

BIG SANDY NEWS.

A. inveniam riam, aut faciam.

VOL. VIII. NO. 47.

LOUISA, LAWRENCE COUNTY, KENTUCKY, JULY 28, 1893.

M. F. CONLEY, Publisher.

NEWS ITEMS.

MINERS' PLEA.
Richard Fairchild of Lawrenceville, Ind., Congressman Knobell's place will not be filled by Gov. McKinley.

H. C. Garrott's drug store burned at Lawrenceville, Miss. Loss, $1,000.

Thomas Corliss aged 25, was drowned at Coal Grove, Ohio, while swimming.

Four young ladies at Springfield, Mass., received a boy from drowning.

Sherman Mow succeeds Frank D. Allen as U. S. district attorney at Boston.

The Trunk Line association is meeting in New York about freight rates.

Lawrence, Ky., is talking about building a big hotel and opera house.

President Cleveland has returned to Gary, Indiana, with his recuperation over.

A lone-energy young woman is walking around Springfield, Ohio, dressed in black.

At Zanesville, Pa., the wooden bridge burned. Loss, $10,000; insurance, $1,000.

The shortage of insurance Agent Goss, of Lima, Ohio, is now placed at $10,000.

California silver men want favorable legislation and free coinage, if possible.

Large consignments of Sumatra tobacco were seized at the Philadelphia custom house.

Lillian Seddon, a young colored woman, was mysteriously shot at Indianapolis, Ind., and died.

Two non-commissioned officers were killed at Cologne while trying to steal unexpended bombs.

Sergeant Weaver, of the soldiers' home at Lawrenceville, Kan., is charged with insubordination.

During a game of cards at Paducah, Ky., a colored Negro named Yuleus Kelly shot old Man.

The Manufacturing Association Club, of New York, paid an induction to Standard Oil for taxation.

The first lot of the new army rifles the Springfielders will be sent out at Washington in September.

Albert Moore of Bishop Landing, Ark., shot and killed Will Duryea twice last week the same girl.

Friendship City of Elizabethtown, Kentucky, was saved by going into New Orleans without a bill of health.

The Wood Carver's Union of New Haven, Conn., Indiana, Gov. Atchley's union in politics, the annexation.

Shay, a bankrupt Chinese, abandoned by the Haytian republic, is awaiting trial at Portland, Ore.

The St. Louis Journal of Agriculture estimates the world's deficiency in wheat this year at one hundred million bushels.

Gen. Jones, of Indian territory, says the condemned "Cochetas" will be shot on August 4 according to the sentence of the court.

A company has been formed in South Dakota to bring cold water whenever people want them. The source will be given on sale.

The price is in part of Miss McDaniel's accident near Memphis, Tenn., cited to death than Martin, who proved to be the wrong man.

A thousand men are made idle by the closing of iron founders in and around Pottsville, N. Y.

Gen. Claude M. Thomas, of Paris, Ky., recently appointed United States consul to Marseilles, France, will leave for his post of duty August 15.

Fifty thousand men are idle at Denver. Efforts are being made to get employment for them in other cities.

The Sioux City, Col., Columbian states that steel before the old storage building is to be used as a monument to the unidentified dead buried in the fire.

American Cable Co. has entire right to the cable in the United States, and to recover damages for past injuries, we say Judge Goss, of New York.

Wm. D. Winters, aged twenty-eight, is at last in jail at St. Louis for forgery. He has signed an affidavit of being held a million dollars since he became of age.

Lient. Charles C. Ogle, Thirteenth U. S. Infantry, was discovered near Harewood, Md., in the home of ex-Gov. W. H. Moore. He was married only two weeks ago.

Large crowds of people from Pittsford, N. Y., opposed to Sunday opening have gone to the World's fair, now that it is closed.

Dr. Zahn's lecture at the Catholic summer school at Pottsville, N. Y., Friday was a startling one. He denied the universality of the flood, and presented many convincing arguments in good of his assertions.

The German government will send men-of-war to China to protect the German residents and their interests. This step comes partly in response to the recent request of the Chinese cities which have commercial relations with German ports.

In taking down the old Pendleton, home of Martinson, W. Va., built over a hundred years ago, old coins were found of the dates of 1725, 1726 and 1727. The house was built by Capt. Steele, the great-grandfather of Henry St. John Sheep.

The Photographers' association of North America elected the following officers: President, Adam Heimberger, New Albany, Ind.; first vice-president, Bill Red, Cooper, Chicago; secretary, J. Edward Risch, St. Louis; treasurer, John Schlesinger, Columbus, O.

Mr. and Mrs. John Phair, the latter known in nearly every city in Ohio as a benevolent lecturer, celebrated the fifty-second anniversary of their marriage at Middletown, O., Friday evening.

At Lincoln, Friday afternoon, Bert Shantz, a story man, laid down in the office at the hotel and fell asleep. When he awoke about twenty minutes later, he found his pocket-book containing $100 gold.

Samuel Ford, a respected colored man of Middletown, W. Va., has been murdered. His wife and Charles Williams are suspected of the crime, and the former has been arrested, while Williams has escaped.

The Security Trust Co., at Nelson, W. Va., closed its doors Thursday morning. It has capital and surplus amounting to $100,000.

Judge Jenkins will not resign from the bench of the United States circuit court in consequence of his indictment by the grand jury as a director of the Bankhead bank.

John Miller was killed near Pollock, Tenn., by his partner in the log-hauling business, W. H. Miller. He had been shot five or six times. Both Wm. Miller and his partner are now in prison. Miller is working on Parker with an eye.

NOT SATISFACTORY.
Senate Will Punish Those Who Have Been Guilty of Aggression.

And Will Make Reparation to the Families of the Victims. The French Government Orders Their Minister to Apologize to the French People.

PARIS, July 21.—The Assemblée nationale has addressed the following letter to M. Barthélémy Pichot:

Dear Monsieur—In the name of our great moderation and virtue we join together and your voice in our behalf. We have heard the news with grief expressed by leading men of our state, knowing as they do the exigent need of our country, and the importance of maintaining the honor of the country, and appreciation as we all do, the power and influence you can exert for the moral and social welfare of those who are here. We are deeply grieved at the great excesses of humanity in which we, as Knights of Labor, are evidently plunged and severely devasted.

We are deeply grieved at the great excesses of humanity in which we, as Knights of Labor, are evidently plunged and severely devasted.

The reply of the French government is far from satisfactory. Lord De L'Isle, however, has not yet called upon M. Deville, but was expected to do so Monday.

Upon a second demand of the minister, M. Parie agrees to evacuate the posts on the left bank of the Maloing within a month. In answer to the third demand, the king deplores sincerely the loss sustained by France, and the incidents at Cambo-Mon-Kang-Chay, as the reply of the French government is far from satisfactory. Lord De L'Isle, however, has not yet called upon M. Deville, but was expected to do so Monday.

The reply of the French government is far from satisfactory. Lord De L'Isle, however, has not yet called upon M. Deville, but was expected to do so Monday.

Upon a second demand of the minister, M. Parie agrees to evacuate the posts on the left bank of the Maloing within a month. In answer to the third demand, the king deplores sincerely the loss sustained by France, and the incidents at Cambo-Mon-Kang-Chay, as the reply of the French government is far from satisfactory. Lord De L'Isle, however, has not yet called upon M. Deville, but was expected to do so Monday.

The reply of the French government is far from satisfactory. Lord De L'Isle, however, has not yet called upon M. Deville, but was expected to do so Monday.

Upon a second demand of the minister, M. Parie agrees to evacuate the posts on the left bank of the Maloing within a month. In answer to the third demand, the king deplores sincerely the loss sustained by France, and the incidents at Cambo-Mon-Kang-Chay, as the reply of the French government is far from satisfactory. Lord De L'Isle, however, has not yet called upon M. Deville, but was expected to do so Monday.

The reply of the French government is far from satisfactory. Lord De L'Isle, however, has not yet called upon M. Deville, but was expected to do so Monday.

Upon a second demand of the minister, M. Parie agrees to evacuate the posts on the left bank of the Maloing within a month. In answer to the third demand, the king deplores sincerely the loss sustained by France, and the incidents at Cambo-Mon-Kang-Chay, as the reply of the French government is far from satisfactory. Lord De L'Isle, however, has not yet called upon M. Deville, but was expected to do so Monday.

The reply of the French government is far from satisfactory. Lord De L'Isle, however, has not yet called upon M. Deville, but was expected to do so Monday.

Upon a second demand of the minister, M. Parie agrees to evacuate the posts on the left bank of the Maloing within a month. In answer to the third demand, the king deplores sincerely the loss sustained by France, and the incidents at Cambo-Mon-Kang-Chay, as the reply of the French government is far from satisfactory. Lord De L'Isle, however, has not yet called upon M. Deville, but was expected to do so Monday.

The reply of the French government is far from satisfactory. Lord De L'Isle, however, has not yet called upon M. Deville, but was expected to do so Monday.

Upon a second demand of the minister, M. Parie agrees to evacuate the posts on the left bank of the Maloing within a month. In answer to the third demand, the king deplores sincerely the loss sustained by France, and the incidents at Cambo-Mon-Kang-Chay, as the reply of the French government is far from satisfactory. Lord De L'Isle, however, has not yet called upon M. Deville, but was expected to do so Monday.

The reply of the French government is far from satisfactory. Lord De L'Isle, however, has not yet called upon M. Deville, but was expected to do so Monday.

Upon a second demand of the minister, M. Parie agrees to evacuate the posts on the left bank of the Maloing within a month. In answer to the third demand, the king deplores sincerely the loss sustained by France, and the incidents at Cambo-Mon-Kang-Chay, as the reply of the French government is far from satisfactory. Lord De L'Isle, however, has not yet called upon M. Deville, but was expected to do so Monday.

The reply of the French government is far from satisfactory. Lord De L'Isle, however, has not yet called upon M. Deville, but was expected to do so Monday.

Upon a second demand of the minister, M. Parie agrees to evacuate the posts on the left bank of the Maloing within a month. In answer to the third demand, the king deplores sincerely the loss sustained by France, and the incidents at Cambo-Mon-Kang-Chay, as the reply of the French government is far from satisfactory. Lord De L'Isle, however, has not yet called upon M. Deville, but was expected to do so Monday.

The reply of the French government is far from satisfactory. Lord De L'Isle, however, has not yet called upon M. Deville, but was expected to do so Monday.

Upon a second demand of the minister, M. Parie agrees to evacuate the posts on the left bank of the Maloing within a month. In answer to the third demand, the king deplores sincerely the loss sustained by France, and the incidents at Cambo-Mon-Kang-Chay, as the reply of the French government is far from satisfactory. Lord De L'Isle, however, has not yet called upon M. Deville, but was expected to do so Monday.

The reply of the French government is far from satisfactory. Lord De L'Isle, however, has not yet called upon M. Deville, but was expected to do so Monday.

Upon a second demand of the minister, M. Parie agrees to evacuate the posts on the left bank of the Maloing within a month. In answer to the third demand, the king deplores sincerely the loss sustained by France, and the incidents at Cambo-Mon-Kang-Chay, as the reply of the French government is far from satisfactory. Lord De L'Isle, however, has not yet called upon M. Deville, but was expected to do so Monday.

The reply of the French government is far from satisfactory. Lord De L'Isle, however, has not yet called upon M. Deville, but was expected to do so Monday.

Upon a second demand of the minister, M. Parie agrees to evacuate the posts on the left bank of the Maloing within a month. In answer to the third demand, the king deplores sincerely the loss sustained by France, and the incidents at Cambo-Mon-Kang-Chay, as the reply of the French government is far from satisfactory. Lord De L'Isle, however, has not yet called upon M. Deville, but was expected to do so Monday.

The reply of the French government is far from satisfactory. Lord De L'Isle, however, has not yet called upon M. Deville, but was expected to do so Monday.

Upon a second demand of the minister, M. Parie agrees to evacuate the posts on the left bank of the Maloing within a month. In answer to the third demand, the king deplores sincerely the loss sustained by France, and the incidents at Cambo-Mon-Kang-Chay, as the reply of the French government is far from satisfactory. Lord De L'Isle, however, has not yet called upon M. Deville, but was expected to do so Monday.

The reply of the French government is far from satisfactory. Lord De L'Isle, however, has not yet called upon M. Deville, but was expected to do so Monday.

Upon a second demand of the minister, M. Parie agrees to evacuate the posts on the left bank of the Maloing within a month. In answer to the third demand, the king deplores sincerely the loss sustained by France, and the incidents at Cambo-Mon-Kang-Chay, as the reply of the French government is far from satisfactory. Lord De L'Isle, however, has not yet called upon M. Deville, but was expected to do so Monday.

The reply of the French government is far from satisfactory. Lord De L'Isle, however, has not yet called upon M. Deville, but was expected to do so Monday.

Upon a second demand of the minister, M. Parie agrees to evacuate the posts on the left bank of the Maloing within a month. In answer to the third demand, the king deplores sincerely the loss sustained by France, and the incidents at Cambo-Mon-Kang-Chay, as the reply of the French government is far from satisfactory. Lord De L'Isle, however, has not yet called upon M. Deville, but was expected to do so Monday.

The reply of the French government is far from satisfactory. Lord De L'Isle, however, has not yet called upon M. Deville, but was expected to do so Monday.

Upon a second demand of the minister, M. Parie agrees to evacuate the posts on the left bank of the Maloing within a month. In answer to the third demand, the king deplores sincerely the loss sustained by France, and the incidents at Cambo-Mon-Kang-Chay, as the reply of the French government is far from satisfactory. Lord De L'Isle, however, has not yet called upon M. Deville, but was expected to do so Monday.

The reply of the French government is far from satisfactory. Lord De L'Isle, however, has not yet called upon M. Deville, but was expected to do so Monday.

Upon a second demand of the minister, M. Parie agrees to evacuate the posts on the left bank of the Maloing within a month. In answer to the third demand, the king deplores sincerely the loss sustained by France, and the incidents at Cambo-Mon-Kang-Chay, as the reply of the French government is far from satisfactory. Lord De L'Isle, however, has not yet called upon M. Deville, but was expected to do so Monday.

The reply of the French government is far from satisfactory. Lord De L'Isle, however, has not yet called upon M. Deville, but was expected to do so Monday.

Upon a second demand of the minister, M. Parie agrees to evacuate the posts on the left bank of the Maloing within a month. In answer to the third demand, the king deplores sincerely the loss sustained by France, and the incidents at Cambo-Mon-Kang-Chay, as the reply of the French government is far from satisfactory. Lord De L'Isle, however, has not yet called upon M. Deville, but was expected to do so Monday.

The reply of the French government is far from satisfactory. Lord De L'Isle, however, has not yet called upon M. Deville, but was expected to do so Monday.

Upon a second demand of the minister, M. Parie agrees to evacuate the posts on the left bank of the Maloing within a month. In answer to the third demand, the king deplores sincerely the loss sustained by France, and the incidents at Cambo-Mon-Kang-Chay, as the reply of the French government is far from satisfactory. Lord De L'Isle, however, has not yet called upon M. Deville, but was expected to do so Monday.

The reply of the French government is far from satisfactory. Lord De L'Isle, however, has not yet called upon M. Deville, but was expected to do so Monday.

Upon a second demand of the minister, M. Parie agrees to evacuate the posts on the left bank of the Maloing within a month. In answer to the third demand, the king deplores sincerely the loss sustained by France, and the incidents at Cambo-Mon-Kang-Chay, as the reply of the French government is far from satisfactory. Lord De L'Isle, however, has not yet called upon M. Deville, but was expected to do so Monday.

The reply of the French government is far from satisfactory. Lord De L'Isle, however, has not yet called upon M. Deville, but was expected to do so Monday.

Upon a second demand of the minister, M. Parie agrees to evacuate the posts on the left bank of the Maloing within a month. In answer to the third demand, the king deplores sincerely the loss sustained by France, and the incidents at Cambo-Mon-Kang-Chay, as the reply of the French government is far from satisfactory. Lord De L'Isle, however, has not yet called upon M. Deville, but was expected to do so Monday.

The reply of the French government is far from satisfactory. Lord De L'Isle, however, has not yet called upon M. Deville, but was expected to do so Monday.

Upon a second demand of the minister, M. Parie agrees to evacuate the posts on the left bank of the Maloing within a month. In answer to the third demand, the king deplores sincerely the loss sustained by France, and the incidents at Cambo-Mon-Kang-Chay, as the reply of the French government is far from satisfactory. Lord De L'Isle, however, has not yet called upon M. Deville, but was expected to do so Monday.

The reply of the